PREFACE

This year the Terminus is doing a mini-history of Sparks and Sparks High School. The time line includes a history of the school, some of the outstanding teams, clubs, and individuals. The theme pages include a part of the history of the Sparks area and show the growth that our community has achieved. "History is not the past - we create it now."

DEDICATION

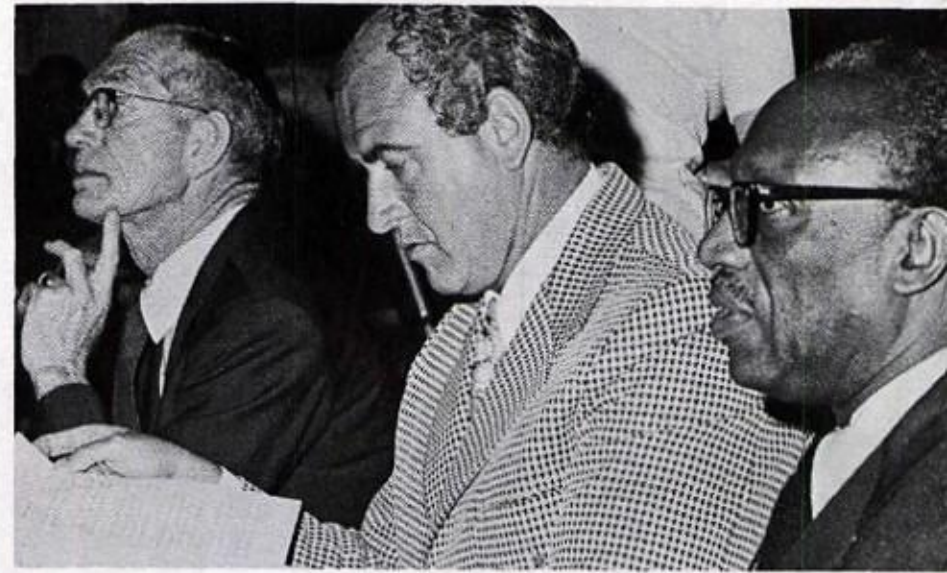

This year instead of dedicating the Terminus to one person, although many are deserving, the staff decided to dedicate the 75-76 Sparks High School Terminus to the Community of Sparks and to the free spirit of all men. We hope that both will endure.

THE STATE OF NEVADA
EXECUTIVE CHAMBER
CARSON CITY, NEVADA 89701

Dear Friends:

As we near the 200th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, it is appropriate for Americans to consider the heritage of our nation, and of the states which make up this great nation.

Nevada was the thirty-sixth state to join the union, and became a state during the critical years of the War Between the States. Throughout the years of statehood, Nevadans have been strong in support of American democracy.

The bicentennial celebration is a time to rejoice in the 200th birthday of our nation, and to give to our children an understanding of the patriots' dream. It is a time to reflect on the things which have occurred in our history, and to attempt to understand those things which have made us great, as well as our frailties. Then, in the light of our understanding of our heritage, and with a realistic assessment of where we are today, we can begin to plot the future course for this country.

In this way, the bicentennial will serve as a milestone on which future accomplishments can be built.

Sincerely,

What does a Senator do in Washington? He represents the people of his state. Daytime, night time, dinner time too, may find him at work on any issue with which the people at home might be concerned.

Bicentennial message for Sparks High School Yearbook

The past and present of our Nevada make the future even more hopeful and exciting. Our many accomplishments and successes have taught us invaluable lessons as we prepare for what lies ahead. Nevadans have learned that bumps and bruises are also good learning tools. As we observe the nation's Bicentennial, we should be wise enough to glance - but not dwell - on our past successes and failures.

EARLY WADSWORTH, NEV.

In November of 1900, the Southern Pacific Railroad officials had completed their plans for the removal of their division point in Wadsworth to a field some 3 1/2 miles east of Reno. The only goal of the company was to build a round house and machine shops for easier service of rolling stock and crews. In December 1901 Southern Pacific Railroad purchased a 40 acre track of land.

Work on grading and laying new track began in Spring of 1902 and construction of the new shops and round house started in August of 1903. The railroad increased their plans to cover a strip of land one mile long by half a mile wide.

The Nevada Historical Society has furnished all pictures on these two pages except the new terminal construction on pg. 13 which was furnished by the Sparks Tribune.

Between 1903 and 1904 some 300 Railroaders and their families along with their houses, furniture, cows, and pets were relocated by the Southern Pacific to the new town of Harriman, named after SP Superintendant Mr. Harriman, which the Railroad had created.

In a 1941 newspaper story, this account of the move was told by Herbert F. McDonald, former S.P. assistant chief dispatcher, "It was a strange sight," he recalls, "Seeing those private homes and railroad houses sawed into sections, then loaded onto flatcars and moved over here, leaving only lawns and trees behind. All employees who owned their homes in Wadsworth were given lots (from the section of town called the 'Reserve') in the new townsite which when first plotted was known as 'Harriman'." The Reserve was a section of land the Railroad bought along the yard now the north side of B St. Lots in the Reserve were chosen by seniority. In March of 1903, the town of Harriman was renamed Sparks after Nevada Governor Sparks.

On June 19, 1905 the terminal was finished and operation began. A 42 stall roundhouse, the largest on the west coast, and shops dwarfing the large shops in Sacramento were also completed. The main street, Harriman Ave. (Now B St.) divided the town. Rail yards and shops on one side with business's and homes on the other. During the 20's Sparks had the Bank of Sparks, a U.S. Post Office, a Telegraph Office, several stores, shops and elaborate boarding houses that serviced train crews. Sparks even got power light, water, and telephone services.

Along with the Railroad Sparks grew. Sparks yard and facilities were the most modern on the S.P. Line; complete with passenger and freight car services. During the 40's Sparks grew to connect with the Reno yards. By the 50's the Railroad began changing it's operations to a switch yard and crew transfer station. The Roundhouse & Shops closed too.

By the 60's most of the yard was changed; and all that is left now is the switch yard and a few maintenance shops. This is not the first city S.P. made, but it seems to be the most permanent. Sparks will stay if the Railroad leaves; and it just might.

The Tribune is Expanding in the Bicentennial Year
The Printing plant as it appeared for many years on Marieta Way ...

Almost all operations in the backshop are now computerized ... most of the operators are women; this one is feeding tape into the Compugraphic, which prints, justifies left and right hand margins and produces ready-to-paste down copy.

Installing new units in the Goss Community press ... the first off-set newspaper plant in the area (Ken Robinson, LEFT, is now production manager.)

Coming full circle in this Bicentennial year, the Sparks Tribune has announced plans to return to the B Street business district.

Many years ago, the Tribune was an integral part of the B Street scene. In fact, in those days, B Street was Sparks. The paper is remembered by old-timers, depending on their ages, on B Street between 11th and 12th Streets, on 11th Street just a door off B Street, or at 6th and B Streets.

In recent years, however, under the ownership of Matie and Stan Barker and, presently, Don and Lynn Woodward, the Trib has been located on Marieta Way in the industrial district and in offices located in the Professional Building in Greenbrae.

With rekindled interest in B Street and the new Bicentennial town center plan, the Tribune has made plans to return to that area. The move during the summer will take the Tribune and its sister publication, the Big Nickel, into facilities purchased at the northwest corner of 10th and C Streets, the building occupied for many years by the city post office.

In addition to acquiring its first newspaper-owned plant and offices, the Tribune has developed new growth and vigor during the Bicentennial. Because of higher costs of production and mailing, the management was forced to develop a new delivery system starting in March 1975. After contracting services of others, the Tribune began its own distribution service in October. Now a crew of 54 paperboys and girls work late Wednesday afternoons to deliver the Tribune to almost every home in Sparks. The circulation, which has been about 2500 for many years, jumped in six months to 10,000 and is still climbing.

These new developments add another interesting chapter to a publication that has an up-and-down career for 70 years. It has been a weekly, a bi-weekly, a tri-weekly, and a short-lived daily. And there were several predecessors to the Tribune—in the days when newspapering was more adventuring than business.

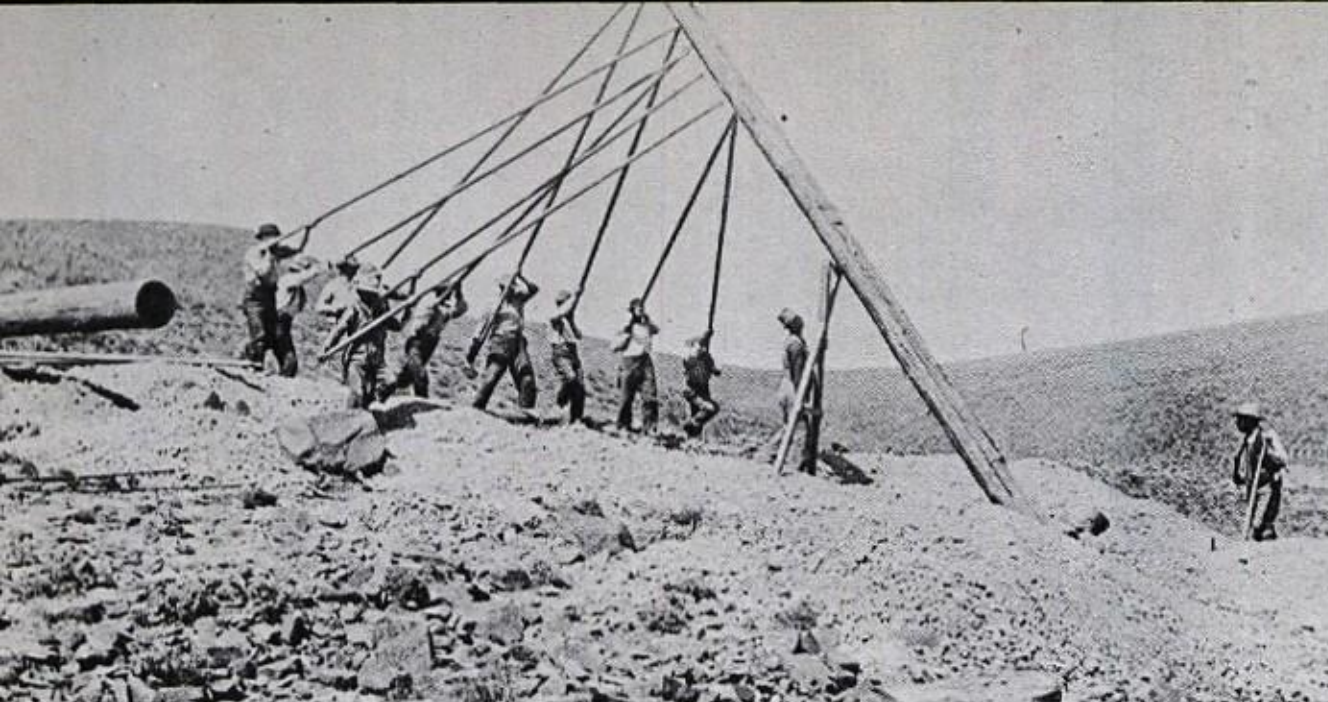

When the city of Sparks came into being, having been moved here, for the most part from Wadsworth when the Southern Pacific shifted its division point yards, the first newspaper to make an appearance was the Harriman Herald, established Jan. 16, 1904, by H.W. Dalton. It was a weekly and the name derived from the fact that the new community was first named Harriman in honor of the president of the railroad.

But Harriman was modest and insisted that his name be removed. The residents wanted their town called Glendale but the U.S. Post Office said there was already a town in California by that name, so the town was named Sparks, for the governor of Nevada, John Sparks, who owned a ranch in Washoe Valley and the Wedekind Mine, north of town.

From 1905 to August of 1910 when the Sparks Tribune began publication as a tri-weekly, two other newspapers were published in the community. Neither the Sparks Dispatch nor Nevada Forum was able to continue publication, the former ending Dec. 1905 and the later Mar. 1910.

If you look closely . . . you'll see the sign "Sparks Tribune" on the building to the right of the livery stable (building with pointed top, open front doors.)

Crew setting pole in early 1900s

Predecessor companies of Sierra Pacific Power Co. have played a part in Nevada's colorful history and growth.

Since the 1880s, when a predecessor of Sierra Pacific began providing electricity to the Truckee Meadows, the tiny steam plant which provided that power was soon retired in favor of water power from the swift Truckee River, an inexpensive source of energy still used today.

But increasing demands for power in the Virginia City mines led to the construction of the Farad Power Plant (1900), a small hydro-electric plant near Floriston, Calif. 20 miles upstream from Sparks.

Sierra Pacific

Company

Four more hydroelectric plants were later built on the Truckee. Three of these plants are still helping to meet today's energy needs.

By 1923 the increasing demands for electricity in the Truckee Meadows led to the construction of an interconnecting line traversing the Sierra Nevada Mountains from California to Reno and Sparks.

"You have to be a mountain goat to work on that line" is the way the young linemen of 1923 described the project.

From Donner Summit eastward the line leaped from rock to rock. Setting the poles was a matter of drill and blast, drill and blast in the hard granite. "We tried to get some dirt around the poles, but mostly it was just a question of packing rock in the holes," says one Sierra Pacific veteran who worked on the line.

Cedar poles were unloaded from a nearby railroad line and floated downstream to the most convenient landings, where teams of horses took over to drag them into position.

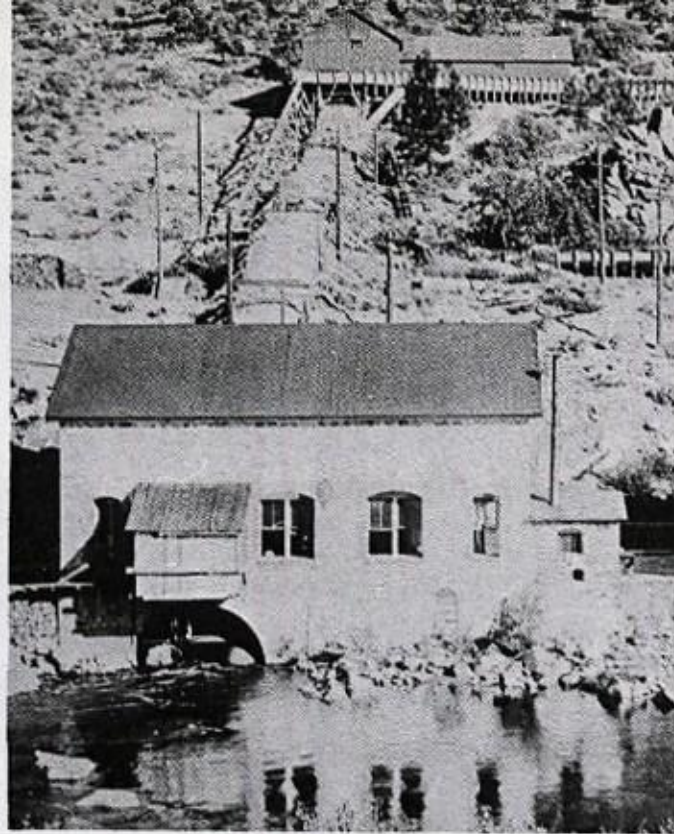

In 1960 Sierra Pacific embarked on another era. By now power produced from the Truckee was inadequate to serve Western Nevada's increasing requirements.

Sierra Pacific decided that the growing Truckee Meadows would be better served with its own generation plants which would make Sierra Pacific selfreliant.

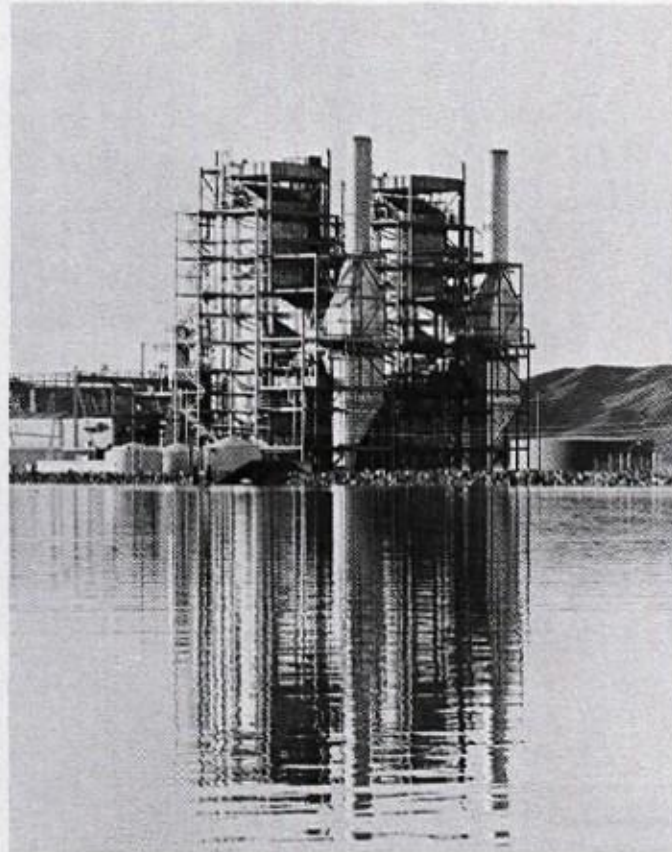

In the 1960s and 1970s steam generation plants were built at Tracy Power Station, 14 miles east of Sparks and Fort Churchill Power Station near Yerington. For the 1980s a coal-fired plant, now in the development stages, is to be completed near Battle Mountain.

Since the early 1900s when Sierra's hydroelectric plants were operating along the Truckee, complex machinery has replaced physical labor in many instances to make line maintenance and construction easier.

With the continued growth of the Truckee Meadows and northern Nevada, Sierra Pacific, as in the past, must continually plan for the future . . .

The Greenbrae Office of FNB serves the northeastern part of the City of Sparks from these quarters at 1962 Pyramid Way, in the Greenbrae Shopping Center. Sparks High School graduate Ely Benedetti is assistant vice president and manager of the Greenbrae Office, which opened in April 1961.

Forty years growing in Sparks for First National

Sparks was recognized as the "City with Promise" 40 years ago by First National Bank of Nevada, which opened its Sparks Office on Jan. 1, 1936, at 948 'B' Street. Now, FNB serves the residents of the community from three offices that nearly surround the city.

The Sparks Office itself has moved a block "up the street" to 1022 'B' and Sparks native John E. (Jack) Wood, an assistant vice president of the bank, is branch manager

Newest of FNBs three branches in Sparks is this sprawling McCarran Boulevard Office, at 400 N. McCarran, where it intersects with Lincoln Way. Manager John Warden and his staff operate from a facility that currently provides three lanes of drive-up service for ultimate customer convenience, and as the demand grows, another three lanes may be put into service. The McCarran Boulevard Office was opened in November 1974 by Bank Board Chairman/Chief Executive Officer A.M. Smith, another Sparks High School graduate.

"Daddy" of First National Bank's three offices serving the City of Sparks is the Sparks Office at 1022 "B" Street. That's a block away from the original site established in January 1936, but means 40 years of continuous service within the city by FNB. Sparks native Jack Wood is assistant vice president and branch manager.

The Greenbrae Office at 1962 Pyramid Way was opened on April 24, 1961. The staff there is headed by assistant vice president and branch manager Ely Benedetti, who also is a Sparks High School graduate.

Newest member of FNB's Sparks "family" is the McCarran Boulevard Office, headed by Branch Manager John Warden, and open since Nov. 4, 1974, at 400 N. McCarran Boulevard, at Lincoln Way Extended.

"We've been growing with Sparks for nearly a half-century now," points out FNB Board Chairman and Chief Executive Officer A.M. (Art) Smith. ("We've known for a long time what a solid community it is.")

Smith should know. He was raised in Sparks, was graduated from Sparks High School and began his banking career at the Sparks Office back in 1940 as a bookkeeper. He was named president of First National Bank in November 1967 and added the duties of chairman of the board in May 1968.

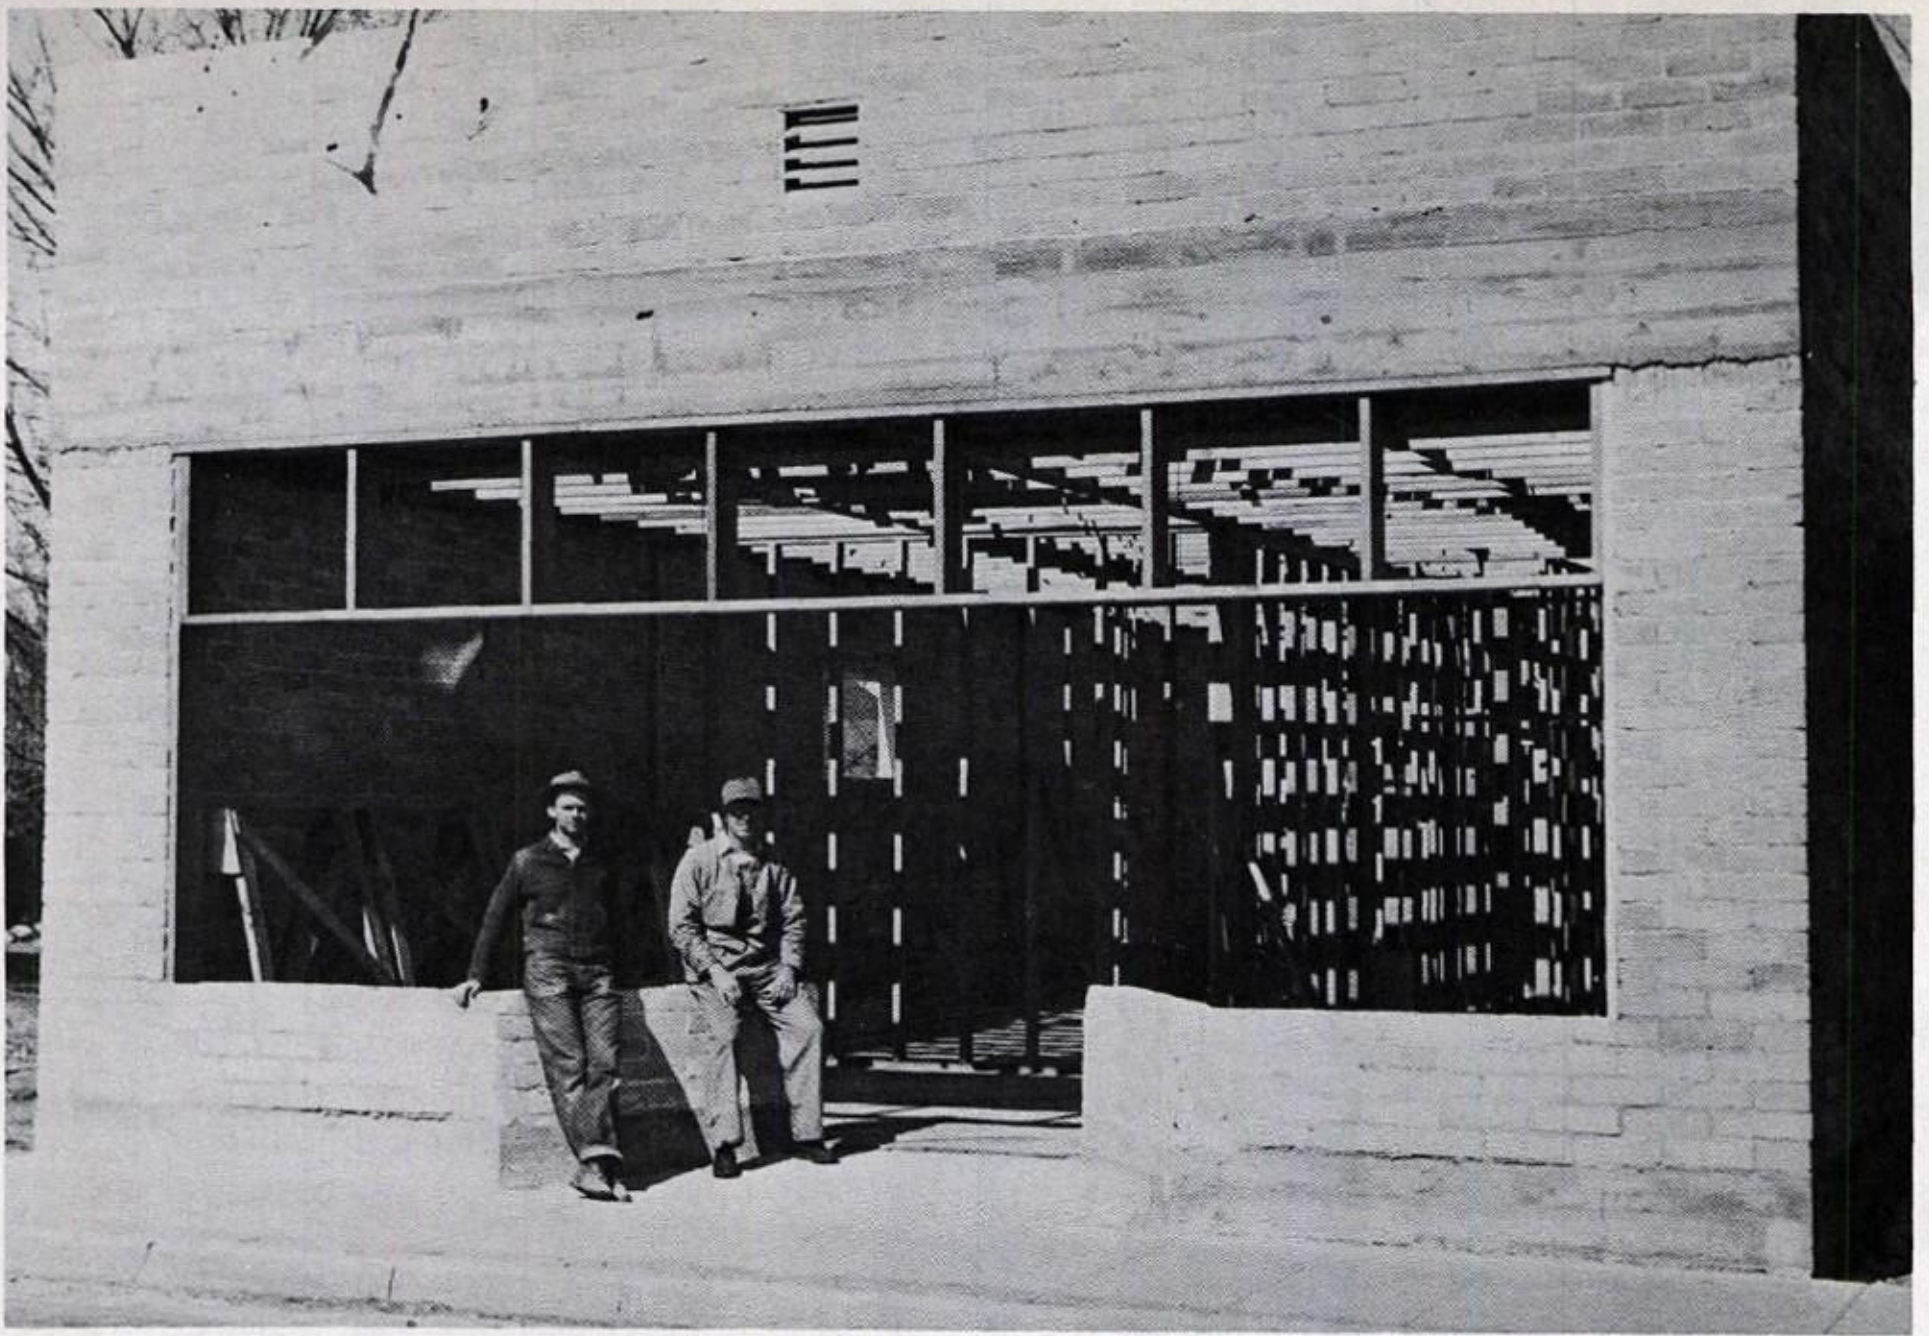

When he retained the titles of board chairman and chief executive officer but turned over the office of president in October 1973, it was to another Sparks native and Sparks High School graduate, Ernie Martinelli.

Many others who hail from Sparks currently hold down key positions with the bank. Among them is Edwin Giannotti, vice president and manager of the Reno District Trust Office. Peter C. Della Santa is vice president and head of the head office loan adjustment section. Still another Sparks grad now an FNB vice president is Reno N. Fruzza, who manages the big Las Vegas Main Office.

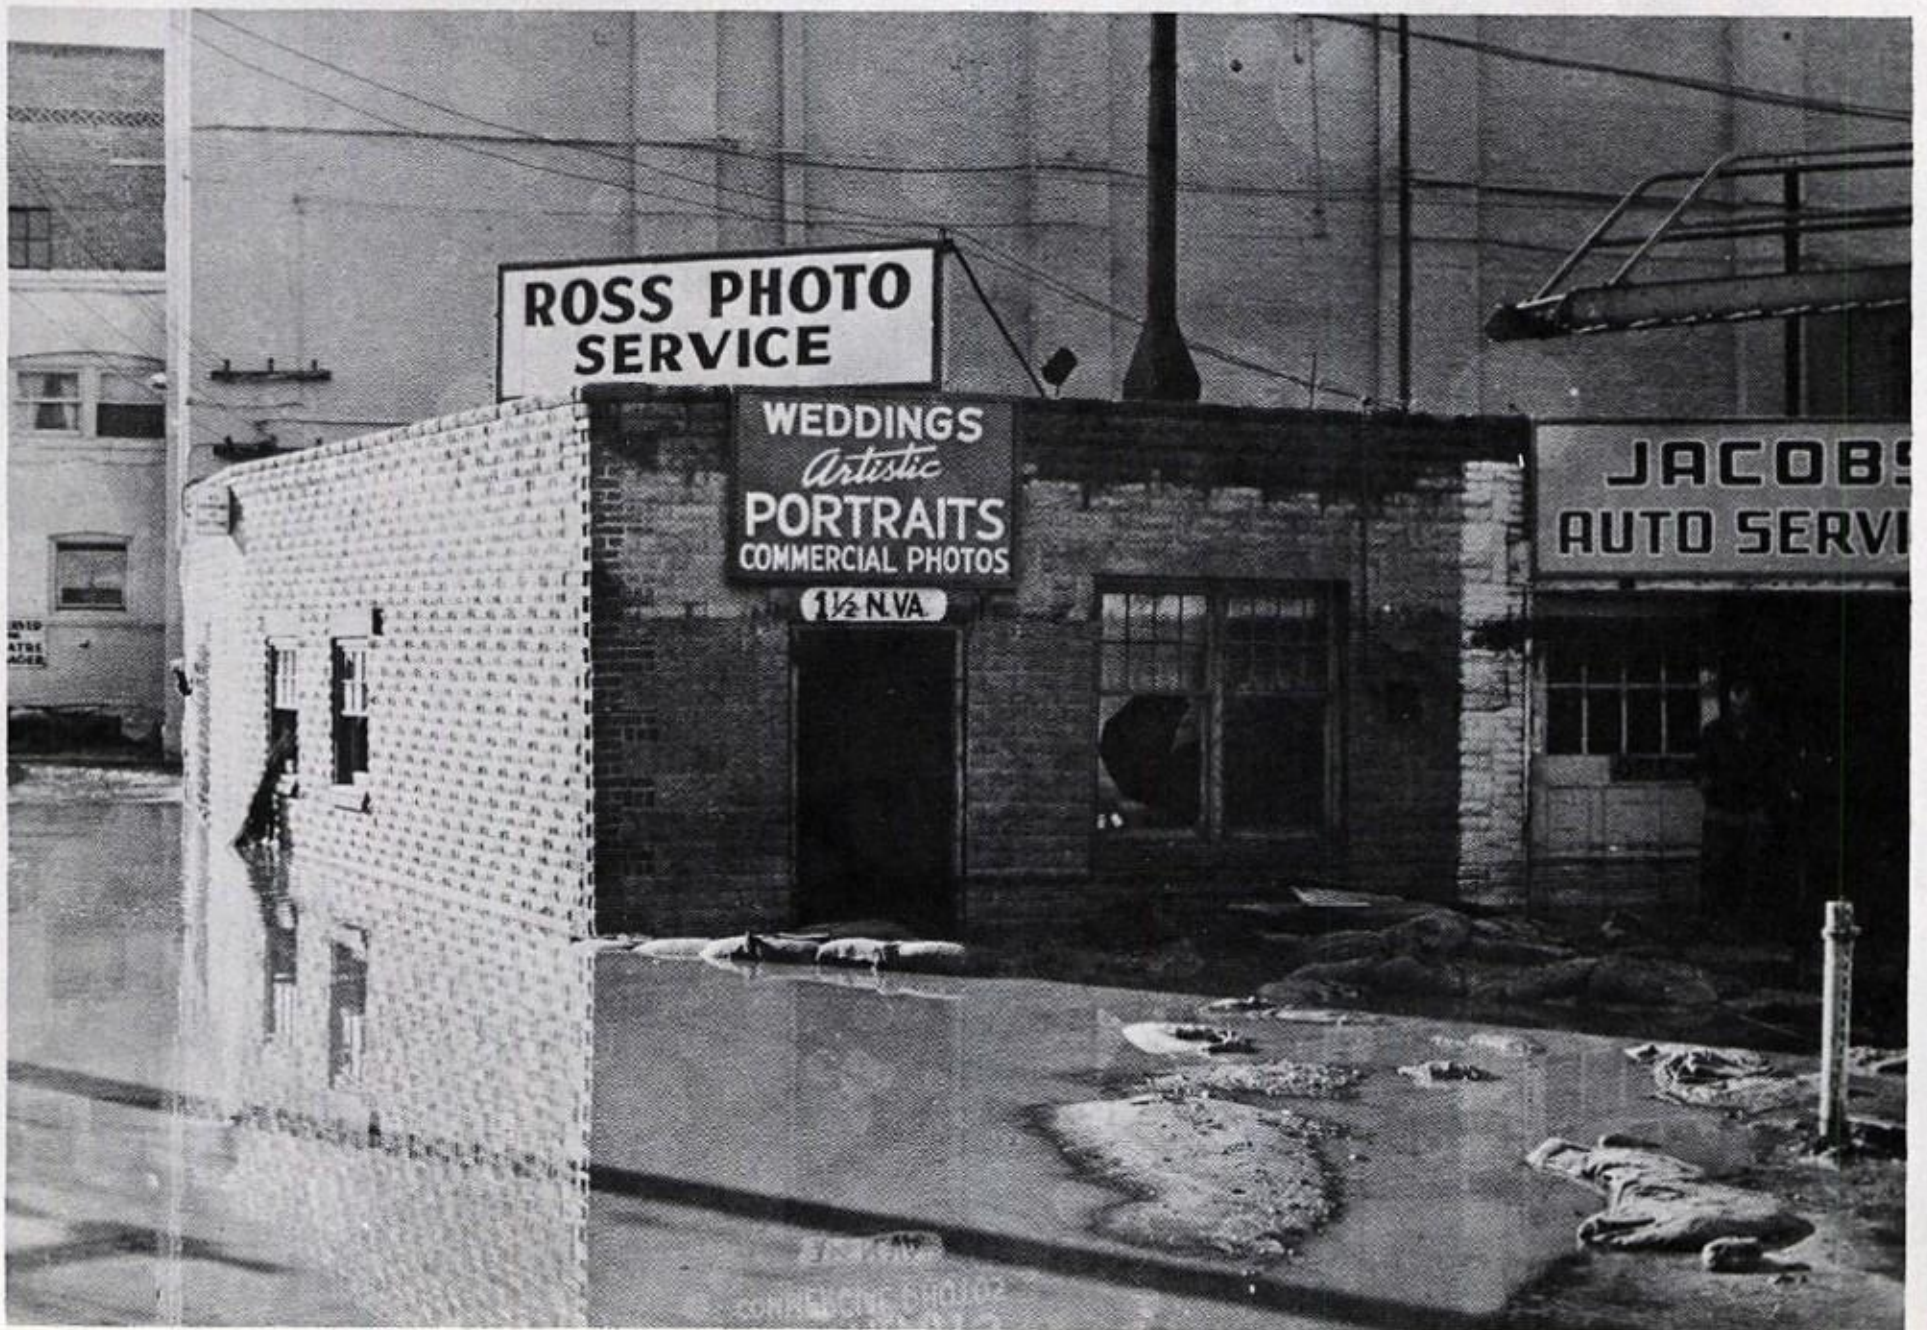

And there are: Ronald MacLeod, assistant manager of the Kietzke & Roberts Office in Reno; Loan Officer Morrey Troutner at the Sparks Office; Loan Officer JoAnn Roberts in the head office section currently revising the bank's Standard Practice Manual.

And Operations Officer Frank Kinnell at the Reno Main Office; Operations Officer Carole Pacheco Mathisen at Sun Valley, Operations Officer Paul Nannini of the Elko Main Office; and Assistant Operations Officers Geno Martini at Reno Main and Sam Macaluso of the Reno Trust Office.

When you say "banking," First National Bank of Nevada knows what you mean. And Sparks people are helping serve the residents of the City with Promise.

Ross Photo under construction at its original location on B St. with Mr. Ross on the left. Even natural disasters were not enough to stop the enterprising Mr. Ross. These are the results of the 1950 flood that ruined his first Reno Studio.

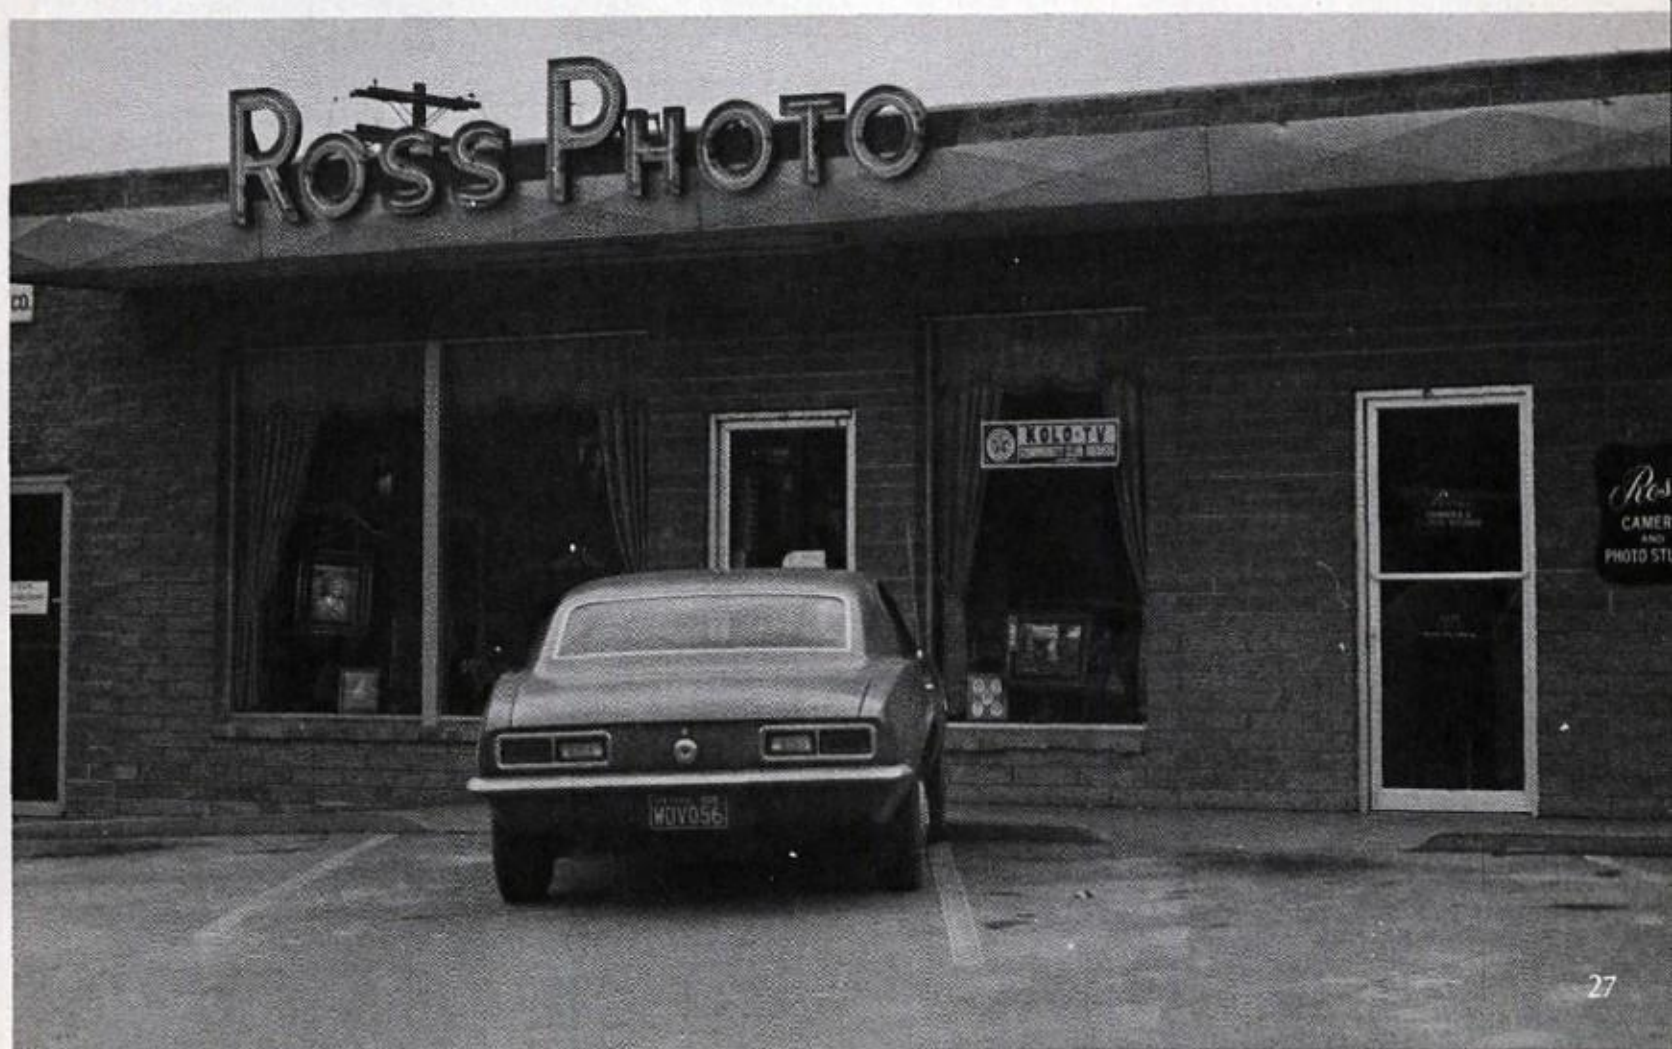

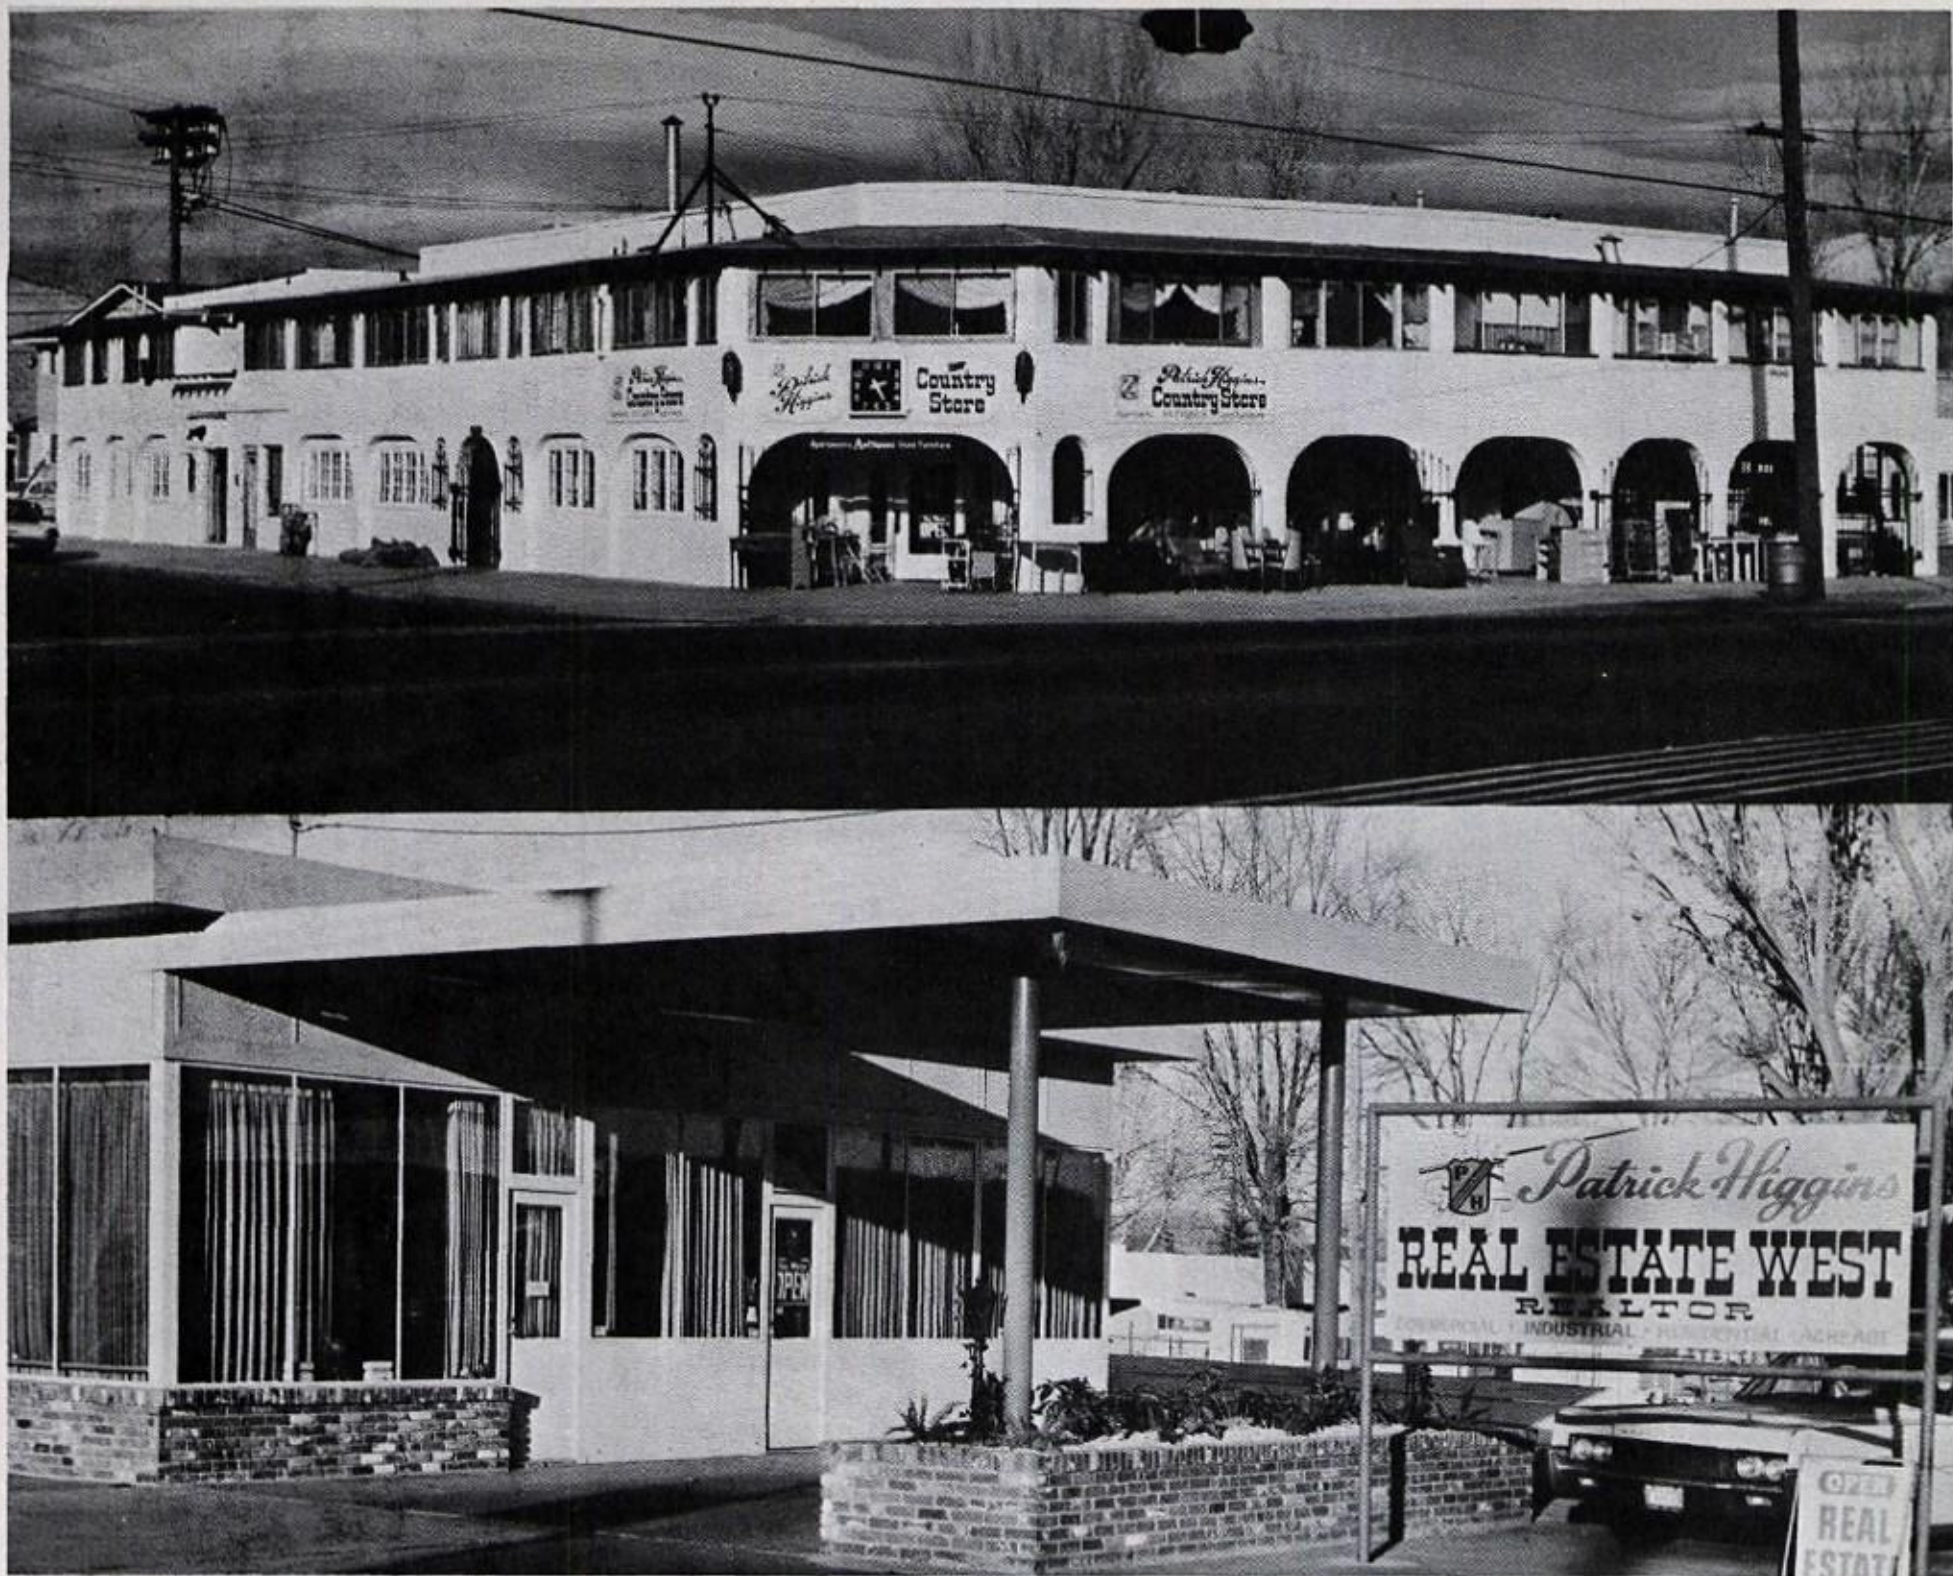

Ross Photo started as a bathroom operation with Mr. Ross processing his work in his home bathroom. During WWII Mr. Ross would photograph children of servicemen in their homes and then sell these photos to the mothers for mailing to their husbands. This started his interest in photography and in April of 1946 he opened the first Ross Photo at 1520 B St. in Sparks. As business in Sparks grew he felt it necessary to open a studio in Reno and did so in 1950. During the course of the years Mr. Ross had four studios in Reno and one at Stead Air Force Base. In 1959 Ross Photo moved from B St. to its present location at 1845 Prater Way. Ross Photo became a Nevada Corporation in 1963. During that same year the studio expanded to include a music and camera store. The music portion of this store was sold in 1969. A major change in operation took place in May of 1973 when Mr. Ross retired and studio operations were taken over by Brent Ross, Tom White, Helen Radmall, and Kaz Fujimoto. Today Ross Photo continues as a major influence in the photo industry of Northern Nevada.

To conserve money in the early years of his business, Mr. Ross would travel to Sparks High activities on his motorbike.

Our current location at 1845 Prater Way in Sparks

The original Real Estate West - soon to be enlarged - with the 2nd. office already on Pyramid Way

Patrick Higgins of Patrick Higgins Real Estate West did not arrive in Sparks as an "already successful businessman" . . . having made a small bank loan in early 1960 to open a small Restaurant-Cocktail Lounge in downtown Sparks, known as Patrick Higgins Bit O'Erin, an old building was remodeled into an atmosphere depicting an "Old Irish Pub", creating one of Sparks favorite gathering places.

Recognizing Sparks as a City with great potential and a City with much promise, Patrick ventured in Real Estate Sales and Investments, eventually creating one of Sparks more successful Real Estate Businesses.

Real Estate West was established as a one-man office in 1969, converting an old service station into Sparks leading Real Estate Firm today . . . each year since its inception Sales Volume has increased over ½ million dollars, with a staff of six persons presently and the establishment of a Branch Office on Pyramid Way that is planned for three additional Staff Members in 1976.

Anticipating an economically sound future for Sparks, Patrick Higgins purchased the old Gepford Apartments at 15th and Prater Way . . . one block from Sparks High, the apartments are now known as Patrick Higgins Apartments and the Country Store.

Pat says, "Only in America can a young man or woman start with virtually nothing and reach the pinnacle of Success".

He believes everyone, sometime or another, gets the feeling of a "Medieval Knight" with a quest to make our Community a better place to live . . . he, too, gets the feeling and Sparks is the best place in the world to exercise that feeling.

View of Sparks in early 1950s

In 1976 there are 25,000 working telephones in Sparks and another 4,000 serving neighboring Sun Valley. There are nearly 150,000 telephones in service in the Truckee Meadows serving a population shown by the 1970 census to be 121,068 and today estimated to be more than 145,000.

But 100 years ago in 1876, Sparks was not yet Sparks. Reno, formerly Lake's Crossing, occupied the area along the Truckee River that today is part of both Sparks and Reno. The 1870 census showed 1,035 persons in the community.

In his Boston laboratory 2,500 miles away, Alexander Graham Bell toiled over the world's only two telephones. On February 14, 1876, he had filed his patent application for "Improvement in Telegraphy." On March 7, the first telephone patent—U.S. No. 174,465—was issued to him. On March 10, the first complete sentence was transmitted by telephone when Bell spilled acid on his lab apron and shouted, "Mr. Watson. Come here. I want to see you!"

Those two telephones, painstakingly perfected by Bell and his associate Thomas Watson, were the beginning of a world-wide telecommunications revolution in which Nevada has played a part. By the beginning of 1975, there were 359 million telephones in service around the world—144 million of them in the United States—and almost all of them tied together by a complex communications network of circuitry that permits instantaneous communication to almost any corner of the globe.

The first appearance of Bell's telephone in Nevada was in 1877. In November of that year, phones were installed in the Con Virginia Mine in Virginia City.

In 1881, the telephone was introduced in Reno by Bell's cousin, telegrapher Frank Bell, who received two telephones with instructions for connecting the instruments.

The Telephone:

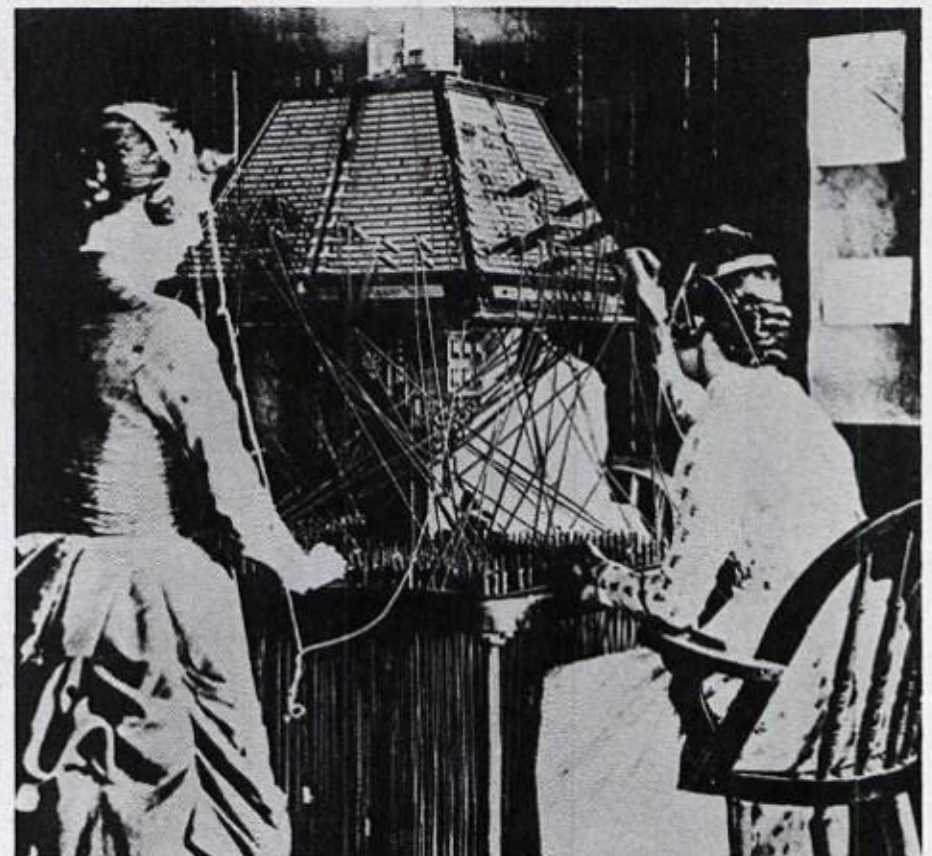

100 Years

The first telephone exchange opened in Virginia City in February 1882. It was equipped to handle 115 telephones and reached its peak of 250 a few years later.

By 1889, Frank Bell had received a license to install the instruments in Reno and other parts of Nevada, and a switchboard was installed in Reno to serve 15 subscribers. By 1891, Bell, who had served briefly as governor of Nevada, established an exchange in Reno. The following year he received a franchise for his operation.

In January 1913, Bell Telephone Company of Nevada was incorporated to serve as a holding company during the construction of the first transcontinental telephone line in 1914, which was to pass through Sparks and Reno. Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co., which had been serving parts of Nevada, transferred all its property to the new company, including switchboards, poles and wires in the City of Sparks.

Still, Nevada Bell's expansion and growth did not get underway in earnest until 1919 when the company began to build long distance lines to crisscross the state and began acquisition of exchanges to expand its operations throughout northern Nevada.

One of the earliest telephone switchboards: 1881. It proved quite a challenge for operators.

Most dramatic growth occurred for Nevada Bell and the City of Sparks beginning in the 1950's and accelerating in the 1960's and early 1970's.

In 1956, Nevada Bell was able to meet telephone service requirements in Sparks with fewer than 4,000 telephones. By 1960, growth and modernization dictated construction of a large, modern central office on Prater Way capable of handling 10,000 telephone lines.

In 1968, an addition was made to the Sparks central office to keep up with the volatile growth. Also in 1968, 290 tons of overhead telephone wire were swept from the sky along east Fourth Street, Prater Way and Highway 40 east to Wadsworth.

The overhead wire—part of it on the scene since 1914 and most of it since 1929—was replaced by microwave and underground cables.

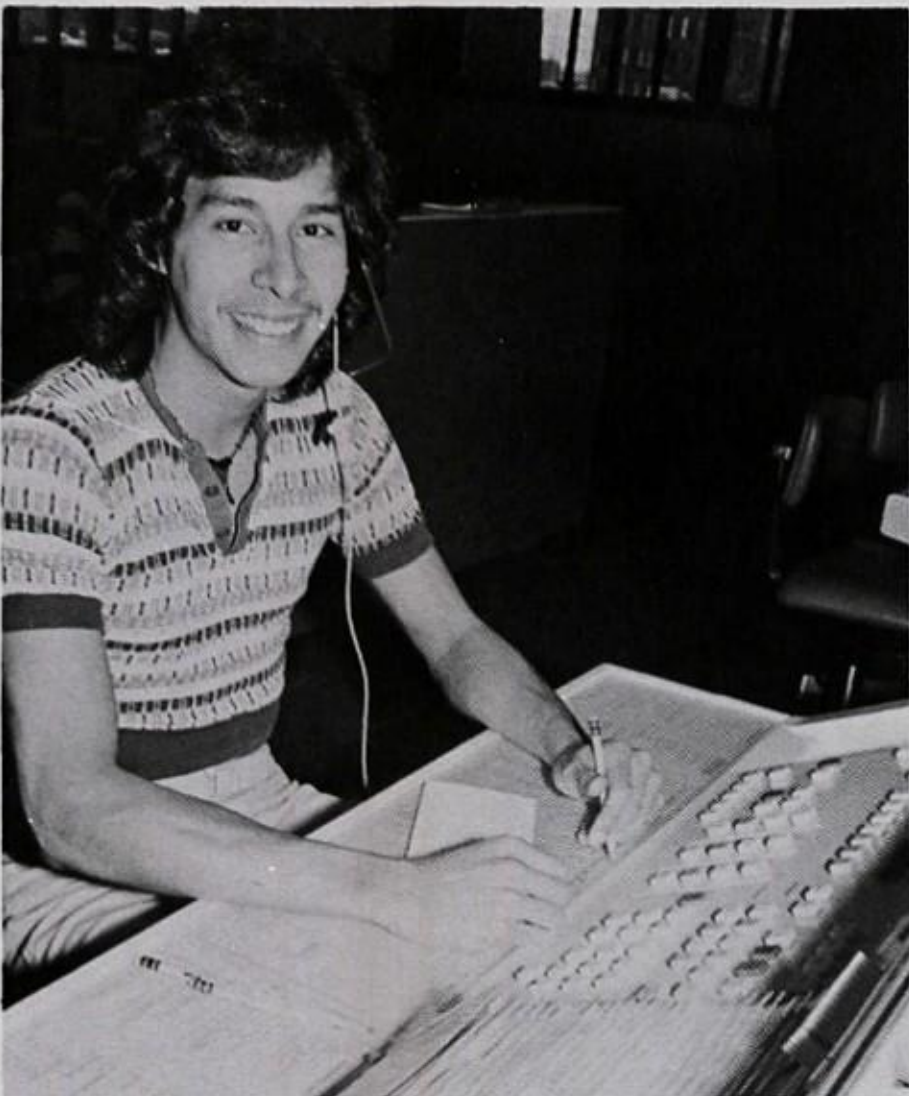

In 1972, to meet growth and increased service demands, Nevada Bell built an electronic telephone switching system in Sun Valley. The No. 2 ESS office—the first of its kind in the Bell System—was brought in as modular units and erected on the site.

In 1973, to accommodate the ever increasing number of long distance calls from and to Nevada, Nevada Bell constructed a new switching equipment building at the corner of First and Center Streets in Reno and installed a 4A switcher, one of the most modern electronic, computerized systems.

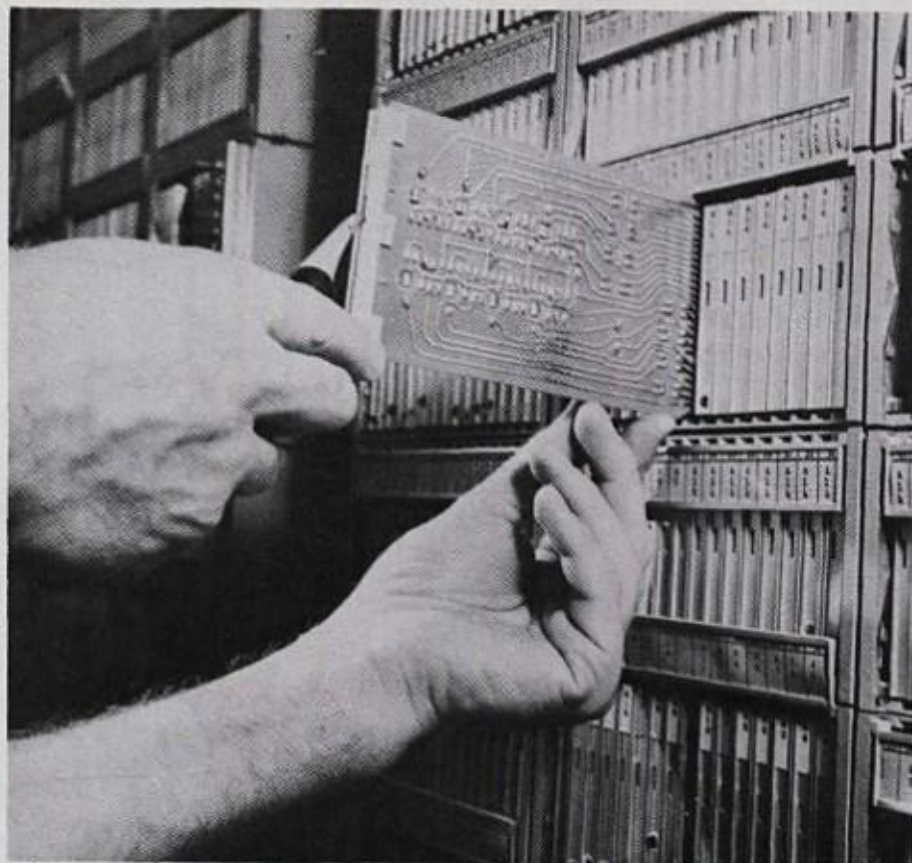

In February 1975, Nevada Bell introduced Traffic Service Position System service (TSPS) for Sparks, Reno and neighboring communities. A new building was constructed at 2590 Orovada St. on the boundary between Sparks and Reno to house the new operator facility, which features electronic operator consoles and computerized operation and billing.

Also in 1975, a second addition was completed to the Sparks central office to keep up with business and residence telephone service needs in the growing community.

The telephone equipment in service in Sparks and other communities served by Nevada Bell represents the most modern available. It is technology developed and improved over the 100 years since Bell's invention first spoke.

Nevada Bell Operator Keith Montoya, a 1973 Sparks High School graduate, at his TSPS electronic console: the electronics and computerized operation of the TSPS system providing operator services to Sparks contrast sharply with the 1881 switchboard at left.

One of the thousands of printed circuits found in electronic telephone switching systems, such as the one serving Sun Valley: the Bell System network is capable of making any one of one hundred million billion connections in seconds.

The telephones in Sparks are connected to a Bell System network whose complexity permits it to make any of 100 million billion different connections in seconds and allows normal conversation across town or across the world.

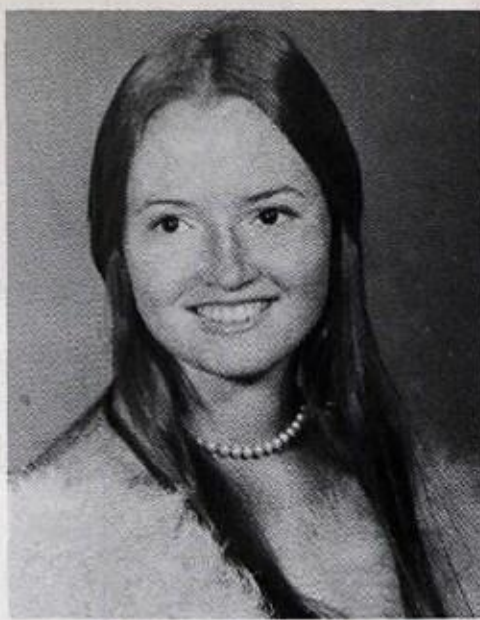

Customer convenience items, such as Touch-Tone[®] and Trim-line[®], and decorator specialities, such as Nevada Bell's colorful Design Line[®] series, make the telephone a pleasure both to use and to look at.

In its 100 years of service, the telephone has come to be acknowledged as truly one of the inventions to dramatically affect the course of history.

DRILL TEAM

In 1949 our Timeline Drill Team looked "Snappy" with a wreathed "S" on their skirts. Practice, then as now, was necessary for the symmetry of a perfect routine and these girls worked on their formations and drills after school and on Saturday mornings before games. Now there was dedication!

In 1946 the first Drill Team was organized at SHS; called the Drum Corps, it consisted of 20 members. In 1947 they were very active performing at all home and most away games. In 1948 they took 1st. place in the Nevada Day Parade. Mrs. T.H.Brown, the 1950 adviser, is one example of the excellent guidance of the girls.

The individuals shown or listed on this page and others above the timeline throughout the class sections are some of our many graduates that established themselves in some prominent way in our community through their hard work, service, or business activities. These are only a few of the many excellent examples for us to try to follow as suggested to us by other alumni, ex-faculty members and administrators, as well as non SHS graduate leaders of our community. We are listing them by vocation as a means of establishing some general order. Some have accomplishments that would place them in more than one area.

VARSITY GOLF

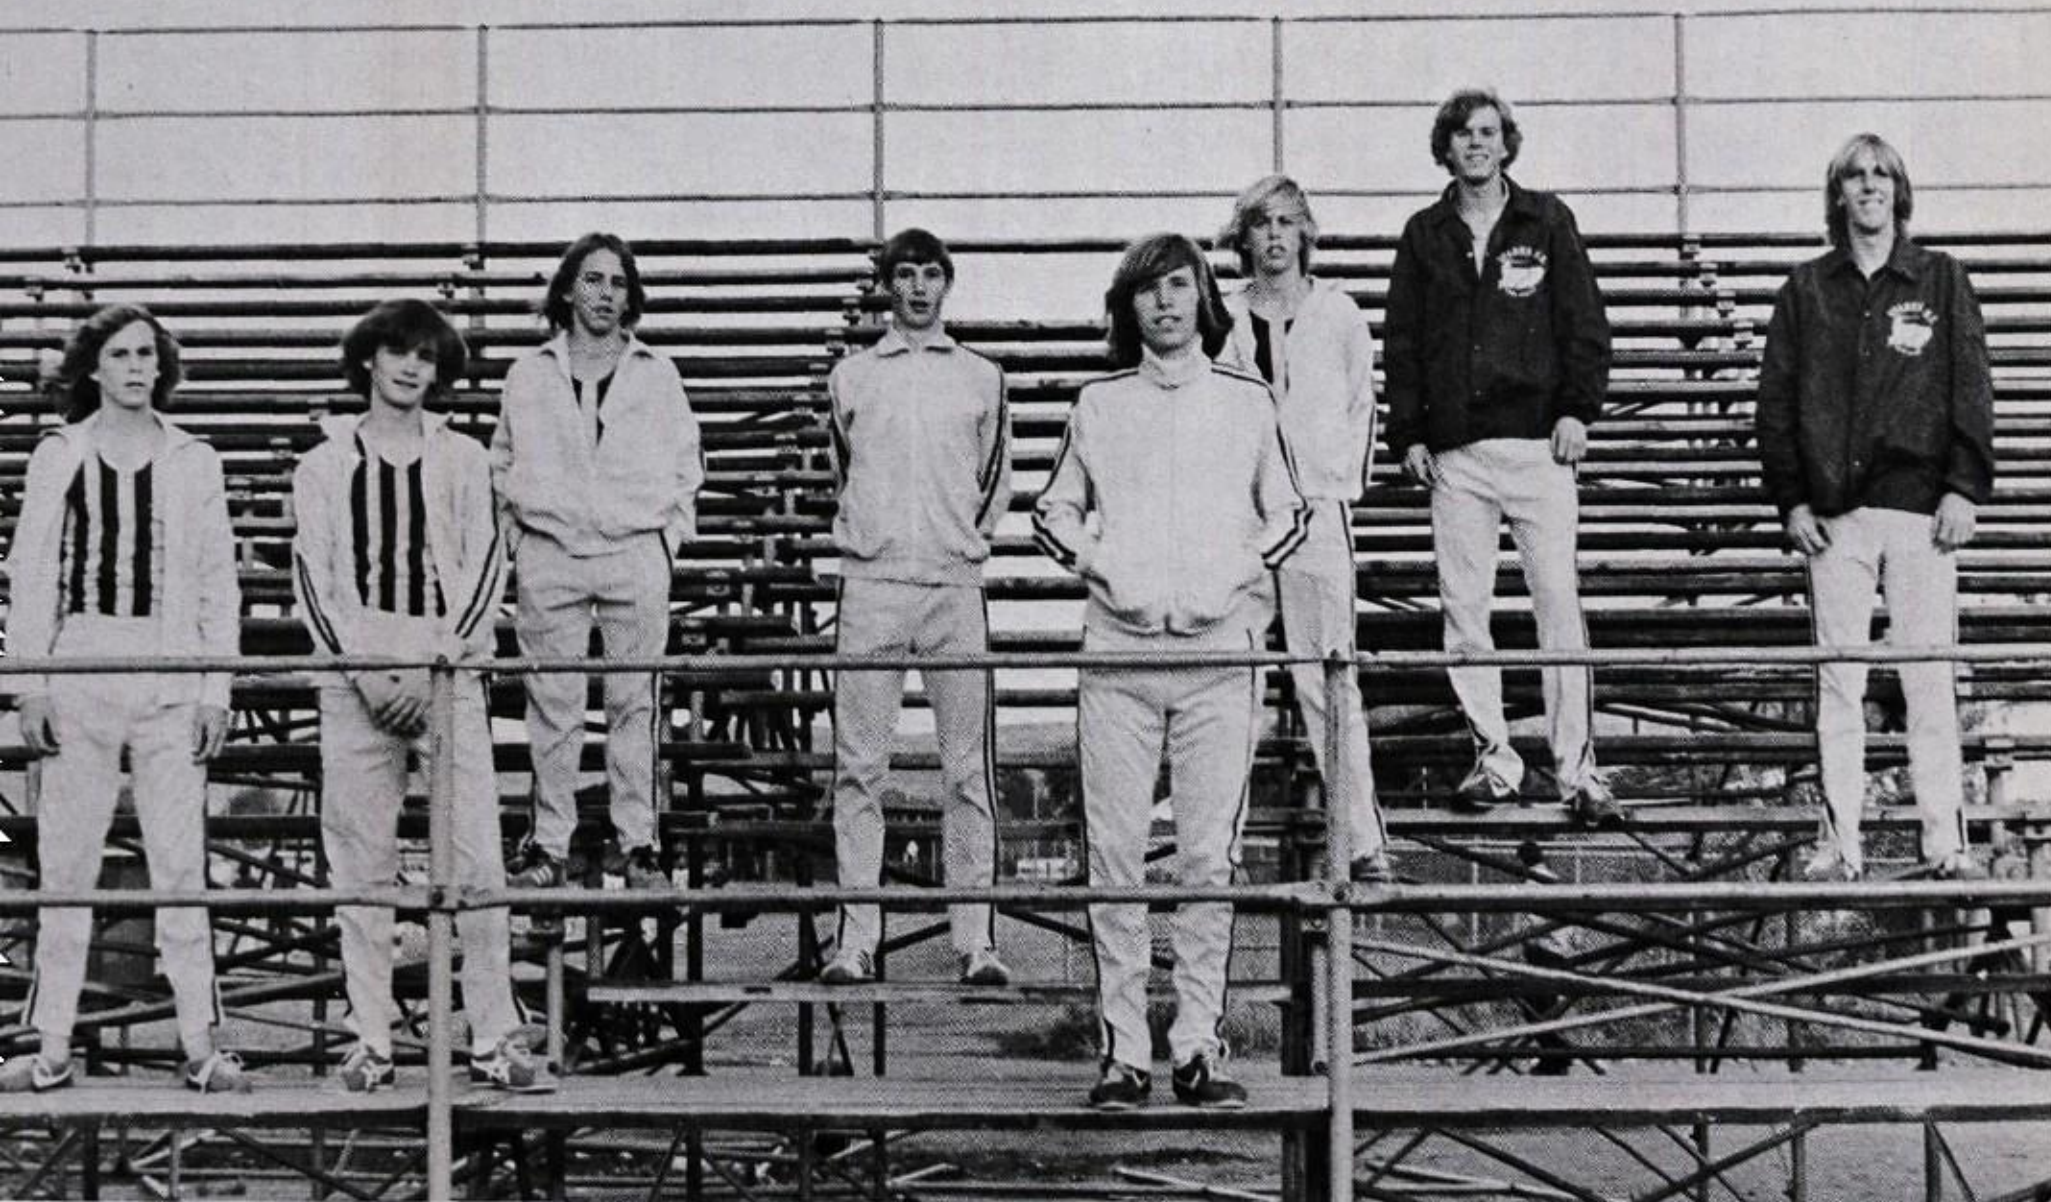

COACH:
Rosemary Girolamo

In our time line we show the first Girls' Varsity Golf Team. This sport began in 1972 and Art Marciano was the SHS coach for this team. The team members were Anita Ross, Maureen Arnold, Shana Ainsworth, Gia Lee Ross, and Cheryl Weathers.

COACH: Gary Daniels

1973 STATE CHAMPS

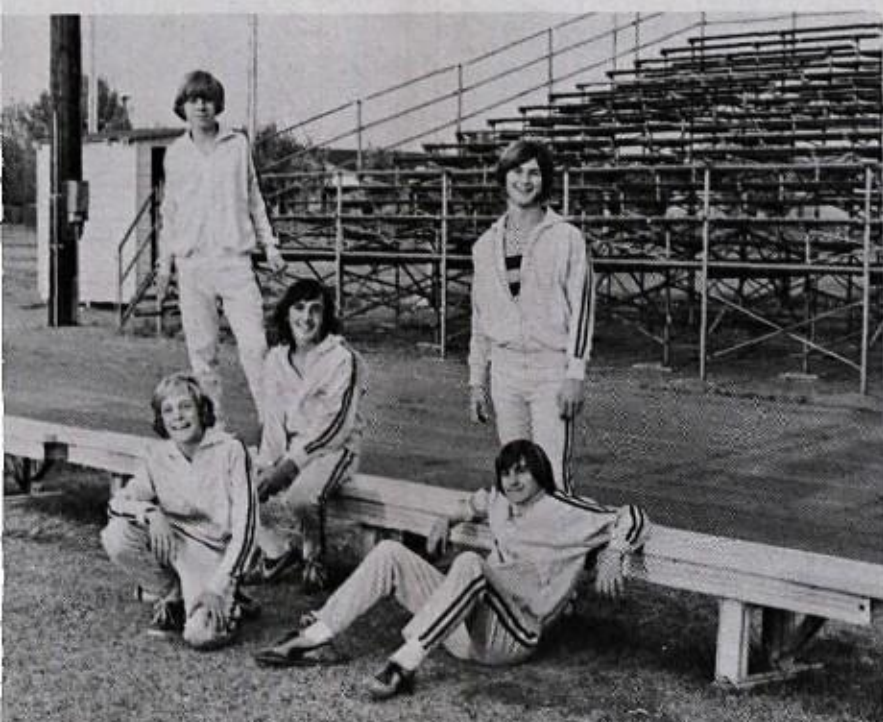

Cross country became a varsity sport in 1973. Sparks was the first state champion team. We were runner-up in 1974 and state champions again in 1975. In 1976 we tied for the zone championship in the point standings; but were declared runner-up by the officials who deleted the scores of the last runner of each team. We placed third in the state championship.

Our time line football team was the first one to play against other schools in 1922. At this time we were thought to have too small a student body to offer much competition to other high schools which were much larger; so our main sport during our early years remained basketball.

In 1942 Pep Club admitted more members to join and it enlarged greatly. Also in 1942 the girls wore white sweaters with a Maroon and Gold "S". In 1948 Pep Club consisted of 55 members, buses were chartered so the girls could attend out of town games. This year Pep Club consists of over 100 members, and Pep Club is also sponsoring the Annual Fashion Show.

Sixth Annual Junior Frolic

Student thespians scored a bull's eye with their presentation of the Sixth Annual Junior Frolic and a direct "hit" was recorded during the two nights performances. Success of the production was a testament to the ability of Director Dick Hillman. Under his direction the eighteen members of the program fully merited the term: "an outstanding success."

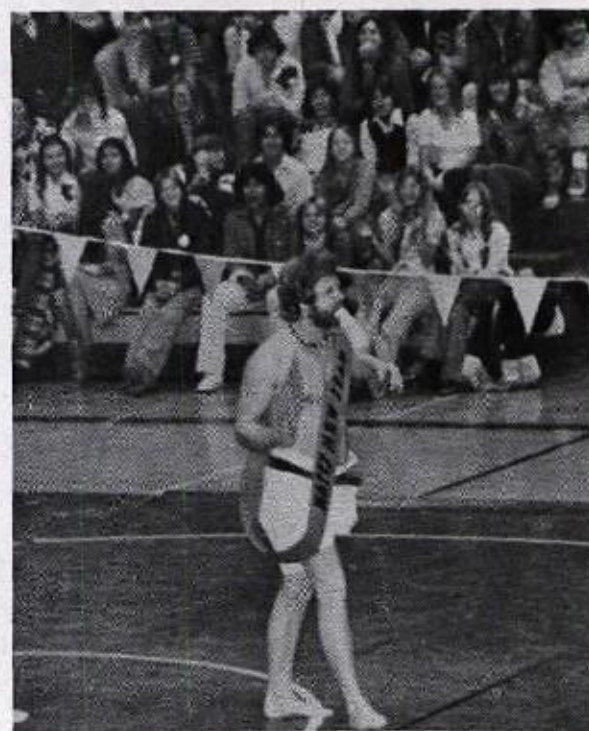

The Frolic plays, "Merchandise of Venice," and "The Education of a Young Man" were the featured productions. Another
